COTTON BAGGING TO BE FREE

FIGHT TO REMOVE TARIFF WON BY CULBERSON.

STEEL COMBINE ALSO SCARED

Texas Comes Within Seven Votes of Placing Cotton Ties on Free List.

Washington, June 28.—The two amendments offered by Senator Culberson in behalf of the cotton growers were taken up by the senate today. They were to put cotton bagging and cotton ties on the free list. Senator Culberson won a clean-cut victory for free cotton bagging and with the aid of several southern senators came within seven votes of winning a victory over the steel trust in his fight for free cotton ties. Senator Culberson won the fight for free cotton bagging with the senate finance committee, and when Senator McLaurin called up the amendment today it was adopted without debate by a viva voce vote.

It was known all along that there would be a hard fight on the part of the finance committee against making the steel trust give up its protective tariff on cotton ties, but the closeness of the vote was a surprise to the committee. Senator Culberson conducted this fight vigorously, being ably assisted by Senator Smith of South Carolina and Senator Money of Mississippi. In opening the debate Senator Culberson pointed out it requires about eight and one-half pounds of cotton ties to properly bind a bale of cotton. Under the Dingley act ties were subject to a duty of 1-2c a pound or a duty of 4 1-4c per bale. This duty was prohibitive. A few cotton ties were imported. It is estimated under the senate bill that the revenue will amount to only $2,150,46.

"This tax against the cotton planter," said Senator Culberson, "will amount in the aggregate to $550,000 on 13,000,000 bales of cotton. It is proposed to be reduced in the senate committee bill to 3 of a cent per pound, which will still tax the planters $330,000.

"It is claimed and sworn to in the testimony before the committee on Ways and Means of the House of Representatives that 9 per cent of the cotton ties used in this country are manufactured by the United States Steel Trust. Binding twine for the western farmers has been placed on the free list. There is no logical reason why cotton ties should not be placed on the free list, as proposed in this amendment, especially as the only beneficiary in this country is the most gigantic monopoly that exist today in America.

"It is said, as one of the objections to this measure that the farmers receive back the amount which they have paid for the cotton ties and the cotton bagging. I will ask you to have read a voluntary letter written to me on May 27 by C. L. McMillan of New Orleans on this subject so that the Senators may understand that this claim of the farmers being reimbursed as it were, is altogether unfounded."

This letter repeats to Senator Culberson the replies made by W. O. Thompson, president of the New Orleans Cotton Exchange; Henry G. Hester and other high authorities on cotton, to a telegram of inquiry by Representative Burleson on this subject. These replies establish conclusively that 6 per cent tare is deducted from each bale of cotton for ties and bagging amounting to $2.70, which the farmer loses, besides the 80c which he has to pay for his ties and bagging.

Although Senator Culberson and his allies were strongly entrenched with facts and figures, the friends of the steel and trust in the senate were unmoved. Senators Dupont and Johnson of North Dakota, who have voted pretty consistently with Senator Aldrich, came over, however, to Senator Culberson on this proposition and made the vote thirty-one in favor of the Culberson amendment to thirty-eight against it. The Senators who voted for free cotton ties were Messrs. Bacon, Bankhead, Beveridge, Bristow, Brown, Chamberlain, Clay, Crawford, Culberson, Cummins, Daniels, Davis, Dupont, Fletcher, Foster, Frazier, Johnson, Johnston, LaFollette, McNary, Martin, Money, Nelson, Newlands, Overman, Owen, Paynter, Smith of South Carolina, Stone, Tallaferro, Taylor and Tillman.

On this vote Senator Culberson did not lose a single Democrat and held the seven progressives besides winning over two stand-patters, Dupont and Johnson. There were, however, a number of absentees, among them Senators Bailey, Clark and Shirley on the Democratic side and Clapp and Dolliver of the Progressives. A number of high protection Republicans were also absent.

While a victory was won in the Senate for cotton bagging, the fate of that amendment still is uncertain, as it will have to be fought out in conference.

FOURTH OF JULY WARNING.

Oklahoma Officer Issues Circular Regarding Manner of Treating Victims of Explosives.

Shawnee, Ok., June 28.—The people of Oklahoma are warned of the danger attending Fourth of July celebrations in the following address issued by State Health Commissioner Mahr:

To the People of Oklahoma: The approach of our National holiday is to many a source of considerable anxiety. Its celebration is too often followed by accidents that maim, especially those caused by explosives, and often followed by tetanus, or commonly called lockjaw. In view of these accidents we would warn the parents or others having charge of children of the great danger attending these accidents, especially those due to toy pistols and like explosives. However, should any accident occur, we would recommend, first, freely incise the wound; second, carefully and thoroughly remove from the wound any particles of foreign matter; third, cauterize the wound thoroughly with 25 per cent carbolic acid; fourth, apply loosely a wet pack of boric acid; fifth give free doses of anti-tetanic serum, if the same may be had. A physician should always be called at once in these cases.

ATTORNEY GENERAL WRITES LETTER TO HASKELL

WEST WANTS STATEMENT OF REPORT PROBES.

Refers to Document Sent Executive by State Dispensary Examiner and Inspector Taylor.

Guthrie, Ok., June 28.—Attorney General West, whose name was mentioned in State Examiner and Inspector Taylor's report as to the condition of the state dispensary, in connection with a $3,402.92 item used in enforcing the prohibition law, has written a letter to Gov. Haskell, requesting that inquiry be made as to his part in the transactions, and names to act with Mr. Taylor, in making the probe. Gov. Haskell and also Justice Williams of the Supreme Court. He insists that itemized statements of all moneys he handled in connection with prohibition enforcement will be found in vouchers in the state auditor's office. In naming Governor Haskell and Justice Williams to act with Mr. Taylor, Attorney General West adds:

"I think it is so far understood that none of you have at any time been my nearest and dearest friends and none are hostile to Mr. Taylor, and none of you will seek to cover up anything for my benefit."

The report referred to, published Sunday morning, was one in which the State Examiner and Inspector called attention to what he considered the incompleteness of the dispensary books, referring particularly to amounts of money used for enforcement, without apparent detail record in the dispensary of the expenditures.

Report also shows that the dispensary in connection with enforcement has been costing the state over $2,500 per month more than the profits.

Gov. Haskell received the report early last week, but returned it to the state examiner and inspector on Saturday, when informed that it had been made public.

Today the Governor, referring to newspaper articles, addressed a letter to State Examiner Taylor, requesting specific information and whether there were charges to be made, and if so, he wanted them made plainly. To this the examiner had not replied at the close of the day. He remarked in the presence of the newspaper reporters that if those interested would read the official report and not the newspapers there would be no explanation to ask for.

Attorney General West's connection with the prohibition enforcement and the $3,400 sum, is explained in another communication he addressed to State Examiner and Inspector Taylor. He says:

"Every one should know, and your office undoubtedly does, that the attorney general has no official or unofficial connection with the agency, and never has had. Previous to the appointment of Mr. Caldwell (state enforcement attorney) certain moneys were disbursed to detectives who were doing the work in the enforcement of prohibition, at my direction. If the persons who were to receive this money and who were employed in this secret work had had their names put upon the voucher at the time the money was disbursed to them, and thus their identity had become public property in the Auditor's office, their employment would have been useless. In fact, the great danger of the employment of detectives is, that as soon as they become known, at that moment they become useless. Therefore, my name was used as a device and a cloak of their identity, to be temporary only. I would make a request of the governor that a certain sum of money be furnished to detectives, and in each and every instance the governor O. K'd the voucher, and therefore the agency handled and managed the proposition and disbursed it, and not myself. The voucher was payable to me, and in each instance I paid the money to the detectives and received a written receipt of them for it. That receipt was afterward in each instance placed on file in the Auditor's office, and I believe is there now.

LIKES THE CONDITION.

Pure Food Inspector Works at McAlester.

McAlester, Okla., June 28.—J. M. Hays, State Pure Food Inspector, has been here inspecting the hotels, restaurants, bakeries, ice cream factories and all manner of places where food products are sold. He visited the two State prisons, the one in the old Federal jail and the one at the site of the new prison, the latter being but little more than a camp. He says that prior to coming here he has been all over the State and has visited all kinds of places, but that the condition of the kitchens and the bake shop at the prisons here, for cleanliness, far exceeds anything he has found in the State, not excepting the large hotels, in their kitchen work.

There is one bake shop for the two prisons and it is established at the old Federal jail and the transfer of the large quantity of bread from that point to the site of the new prison, where more than 500 men are at work, is attended with such precautions that all chance of contamination is avoided.

Mr. Hays was particularly pleased with the sanitary conditions generally surrounding the prisons and praised Warden R. M. Dick and Deputy Warden Gus Lubes for what they have accomplished, having had virtually nothing to start with when they brought the large number of prisoners here from Kansas.

TO HAVE MORE BANKS.

When Interest Rate Is High and Accommodations Poor Competition Will Be Invited.

Guthrie, Ok., June 28.—The State Banking Department has adopted a resolution, holding that when banks of a community are charging unreasonable interest and do not afford the public proper accommodations the state's policy will be to create competition in such community by authorizing additional banks.

The resolution grew out of an application to charter a state bank at Talhina, LeFlore county, which the state banking commissioner refused on the ground that the population and business did not justify additional banks.

Franchise Election.

Council Passes Proclamation for Election July 29.

(At the meeting of the city council last evening a proclamation was passed calling for a special election to be held July 29th to determine whether or not the Ada Oil & Gas Co. shall be granted a twenty year franchise in the city of Ada.

The company is anxious to get the franchise through as early as possible, as they report favorable progress with their leases and other operations, and in the event oil is immediately found they want to commence the work of piping the city at once.

Woodmen Circle Surprised.

Angelo Grove No. 42, Ada, Okla.

Monday night June 28, being their regular meeting night all the officers and goodly number of members present, were in the I. O. O. F. hall and while they were performing their solemn duties the Woodmen broke in upon them and to their surprise served them with delicious ice cream and waiters. After everybody had been served some interesting talks on the good of both orders were heard from the members. After a little order of business Grove adjourned declaring it a most enjoyable evening and hoping the Woodmen would surprise them again soon. Look out for the W. O. W. and Circle floats on parade July 5th.

Billy in the Toils.

Nickel Billy, colored, who knocked Nancy Titus in the head with a beer bottle down in the flats Sunday and made his escape, was apprehended by Holdenville officers yesterday and placed in custody together with his victim who had joined him at that place. Chief Culver left for Holdenville this afternoon and will bring them back to Ada for trial.

MAY SUE EXPRESS COMPANY.

American Said to Expect Litigation Contesting Order Prohibiting Interstate Liquor Shipments.

Guthrie, Ok., June 28.—It is learned semi-officially today that in issuing its order to Oklahoma agents not to deliver any more interstate shipments of whiskey in this state, the American Express Company anticipates a suit against it in St. Louis, Kansas City, Fort Smith, or some neighboring city to Oklahoma, to compel it to deliver such shipments, thus bringing the matter squarely before the courts to determine what is the right of the Oklahoma officials in enforcing the state prohibition law so as to interfere with such deliveries. It is also learned today that the Wells-Fargo company will carry to the highest courts an appeal from the recent order of the state corporation commission fixing a schedule of express rates in Oklahoma.

Prominent W. C. T. U. Workers in Ada.

Our local W. C. T. U. of this city has been blessed with some good things the last few days. On last Friday night Miss Belle Kearney was with us in a great lecture in First Baptist church. Miss Kearney is one of the "chosen ones," having given up her home life, and all that society means to a talented young woman, to devote her life to this work. She has been "round the world" in the work, and her matchless oratory has been heard for our cause in almost every civilized country under the sun. Her coming was a help to every one who heard her. No woman (and no man as for that,) who has an opportunity to hear Miss Kearney can do herself justice and miss a chance to hear this devoted woman.

Sunday we had with us for two lectures one of our "devoute ones" from a sister state, Mrs. A. C. Zehner, Dallas, Tex. At 11 a. m. she was heard in the Christian church. Her subject was "The Ideal Love." It was a great sermon on the old and ever new theme in which all find a comfort. Mrs. Zehner's style of logic and oratory is peculiarly her own and is comparable to none, unless to that unique preacher of wonder! gifts divine inspiration, Chas. H. Spurgeon. Hers is the Spurgeon temperament, and her heart is as full of love and divine fire as any minister who has appeared at any time. She carries a peculiar inspiration to all who hear her, and was said by one of the ministers introducing her:

"The Devil has no worse enemy in all this land than Mrs. Zehner." She occupied the pulpit of M. E. church at the evening service, and her text was, "Go Forward." To those who did not hear her it can never be forgotten. Her presence was made the occasion to do something for the effort that is now being made to place a fountain on the public square of this city, and something over $40.00 were raised for that purpose. She also inspired a number of the good women to join in the work of the W. C. T. U., and altogether her presence was a benediction which we much needed, and a help which we shall not soon forget.

In this connection I desire to call attention to the interesting local Democrat Medal Contests which our Union is having. A number of the young people are taking great interest in the work, and the result is we are having some productions that are worth hearing. Please come out to hear these young people when you have a chance, and thus encourage your home boys and girls in the good work which they are doing.

GEORGE LINDSTON TRIAL.

Continued by County Attorney for
Purpose of Securing More Evidence.

The case of George Lindston, charged with attempt to steal liquor from the booze ware room at the Katy depot, came up in Justice Brown's court today at 1:30. The county was represented by J. W. Dean and the defendant by Senator Roddie. Several witnesses were examined but no definite evidence seemed to develop, consequently the county attorney adjourned the case until tomorrow when it is stated that they will have secured more witnesses.

PROPER CARE OF THE INSANE.

City of Gheel, in Holland, Takes Care of These Unfortunates as its Guests.

One of the most remarkable places in Europe, of which no tourist on pleasure bent ever takes notice, is the "City of the Insane," by which name Gheel, near Antwerp, has been known for generations. About 1,500 men and women, afflicted with insanity in all its forms, live there, and have a happy being as the "guests" of the inhabitants, who know by experience how to treat the unfortunate ones. In the streets, in the places of amusement, the cafes and workshops these patients may be found, and nowhere is there the remotest suggestion of restraint apparent. The board ranges from 240 to 2,400 marks a year, and, no matter how small the amount may be, the patient is always the favored member of the family. He has the first right to the most comfortable chair, and the head of the table belongs to him. He receives the most attention, and this he learns to appreciate and to endeavor to maintain by living down his illness. Even the children know how to treat the demented people. The dangerous ones are sent to another settlement and to institutions. It is wonderful how considerate, careful and kind the simple people are toward their charges, and a peep into the community would probably terrify physicians who had never heard of and could not appreciate the good which is being done in this "City of the Insane."

HORROR OF AFRICAN NIGHT.

Traveler Describes Peculiar Conditions That Exist in Regions of the Dark Continent.

Caroline Kirkland, in her book on "Some African Highways," writes of night in the dark continent: "There is nothing so black as an African night, and I think that it is because the earth, being a deep red, offers no reflection to the faint starlight, such as we get in other lands. Instead it wallows up what slight glow there may be, and gives to the darkness a dense, velvety quality not to be found anywhere else. Overhead the stars glare more brilliantly than in northern latitudes, but they seem to cast no light, and the night is palpable, suffocating, appalling and filled with a nameless horror which is quite indescribable."

In a single sentence the same writer gives a forcible idea of the sleeping sickness: "While there is nothing acutely distressing about this manner of dying, nothing to equal the terrors of other vital diseases like cancer or tuberculosis, there is something peculiarly sinister in the slow, stealthy, irresistible approach of death, whose course no known remedy can stay or alter."

Of African lions Miss Kirkland writes: "As a rule it is only old lions who attack human beings. They grow too decrepit to be able to catch the more agile antelopes who are their lawful prey, so, goaded by a hunger which age cannot wither or lessen, they pounce on unwary mortals."

Boots and Gloves.

In a recent divorce case in Scotland it was testified that a lady, searching her maid's trunks, found 200 pairs of her own old gloves therein.

"Abroad," said a dealer, anent this happening, "it isn't unusual for a woman of fashion to have 200 pairs of gloves. At the sale of the duchess of Somerset's things, over 2,000 pairs, all as good as new, were put up."

"You see, gloves are cheaper abroad. Over there you'll pay a dollar for an article that would cost you $2.50 here. But, aside from that, foreign women incline to go in more for gloves—and boots, too—than we do. The foreign woman is apt to be better gloved and booted than her American sister."

It Was the Cat.

The yellow-haired hostess rushed suddenly to the center table, took all the papers off and smoothed down a thick, fluffy yellow skin that lay there. "It's my cat," she explained. "My poor little pet cat that died last spring. Isn't it beautiful? She was a lovely cat. You see her picture up there on the wall when she was alive. Lovely little kitty!" she purred to the skin, while some of her guests shuddered and one whispered to the other: "I don't see how she could do it. I'd rather have the skin of my husband on the table or floor than my pet cat."

Children Are Victims.

A member of the Society for Political Study in New York said the other day that the factories claim more victims than the rivers in China ever did, more little children going to their death from these places. The mines and the sweatshops are worse than the factories, she said. In the course of the discussion the point was brought out that there is doubt as to whether the mothers in China ever do throw their children into the rivers.

Willin'.

A certain newly-elected congressman met a society bud of Washington at his first reception. "Do you like Balzac?" she queried. "Well, I never played it," drawled the westerner. "But I'm willin' to take a hand."—Lippincott's.

The Tough Artistic.

"I'd like to take you to the theater to-night, old man." "Thanks." "And I would if I had the price. Could you spare a five?"

FROM COLD MUTTON FOR THE LUNCHEON

MANY EXCELLENT DISHES MAY BE PREPARED. SOME GOOD METHODS OF DECORATING THE TABLE.

Mistake That Is Too Frequently Made in Cooking Hash—Grilled or Deviled It May Suit Tastes of Many.

Very few people enjoy cold mutton unless it is served during hot weather with a daintily prepared salad, and even then a frequent repetition becomes monotonous, and the time comes when the bone is so much in evidence that re-cooking the remainder becomes necessary, in order to prevent it being wasted.

The most common method of reheating cold mutton is in the form of a hash, but in very few cases is it successfully made, for most people make the mistake of putting the cold meat into hot gravy and allowing it to boil. The cold meat should be put into cold gravy, and should be kept under boiling point, until just before serving it is brought to the boil for one minute, so as to cook the flour with which it is thickened. There are many other ways of re-cooking cold mutton which would give variety, and prevent its palling on the appetite.

The value of the bones must not be overlooked. The meat should be cut off very closely from them, and they should be placed in cold water and then boiled for several hours to make a supply of stock, useful as a foundation for soup or in the manufacture of dainty dishes from the remains of the meat. Fat which seems in excess should be trimmed off and melted down to form drippings, but a large mass of cold fat such as is found at the edge of a shoulder of mutton should be chopped finely and used as suet in the making of boiling puddings.

The simplest and quickest method of re-cooking mutton is by grilling it, but for this purpose only the largest and most suitable pieces should be employed. The meat should be brushed over with salad oil, sprinkled with pepper and salt, and grilled for a few minutes on both sides over a clear fire, which should be sprinkled with a little salt to make it burn clearer. If the pieces are brushed with oil and dipped in curry powder before they are grilled, they can be served as deviled mutton, and in this form they make a delicious dish.

Curried mutton is also excellent, for although fresh meat makes the best curry, one made from cold meat is not to be despised if it is carefully made. Peel and core two medium sized apples and cut them small, and peel and slice two onions. Fry the apple and onion in an ounce of dripping, but do not let them burn. Mix a heaped teaspoonful of curry powder and a tablespoonful of flour into a smooth paste with half a pint of cold stock. Pour it slowly into the frying pan, and stir it until it boils and thickens. Pass the curry mixture through a wire sieve, add pepper and salt to taste, and when it is cool add about one and one-half pound of neat pieces of cold mutton. Allow the mutton to get heated very slowly, and when it is almost at the boiling point serve it in a border of rice which has been boiled so that the grains are distinct.

Scrambled Eggs and Clams.
Rinse and drain two dozen good-sized clams and chop them fine. Beat together three eggs, add to them three tablespoonfuls of clam juice. Heat one tablespoonful of butter in a frying pan, turn in the clams and shake and turn occasionally until nice and brown. Pour in the eggs, add seasoning to taste and stir until the mixture is a soft scramble, then pour over hot buttered toast.

Egg Surprises.
Required: Half a pound of sausage meat, three eggs, egg and bread-crumbs, deep frying fat, chopped parsley, and made mustard.
Boil the eggs hard and remove the shells. Divide the sausage meat into six portions, add chopped parsley to each and some made mustard, and roll each one out separately in flour. Then roll half an egg in each.

To Clean Silver Quickly.
Place two quarts of potato peelings and one quart of water in an iron frying pan or spider, cover and boil ten minutes; then drop in as many silver spoons, knives and forks as the water will cover; continue the boiling and in less than ten minutes they will look like new. Remove the silver, wash in usual manner, rubbing well with dry, soft towel.

Red Pepper Sandwich.
Take one-half pound American cheese and small can red peppers, "Pimientos Morrones." Put cheese peppers through meat grinder. Then add enough mayonnaise dressing so it will be thin enough to spread. Cut thin slices of bread, butter, and use filling as above.

Baked Onions.
Parboil six large onions, slice off the tops and remove the centers and chop fine with breadcrumbs and bits of cold meats. Add one egg, salt, pepper, and tomato juice. Fill onion shells and cover with breadcrumbs dotted with bits of butter and grated cheese, and bake.

For Washing Tooth Brushes.
Tooth brushes may be washed in a strong solution of salt and water.

Pretty Arrangements Add So Much to the Enjoyment of the Meal—"Rainbow" Scheme Is One of the Best.

Violet Luncheon.—In the center of the table stand a large cut glass bowl on a violet embroidered centerpiece. Fill this bowl with smilax and pink carnations. In the center of the bowl place a tall green glass vase and make it secure by passing four lengths of ribbon across the top of it and fasten the ends on the edge of the centerpiece with little bows. In the green vase place eight bunches of violets. From each bouquet run violet baby ribbon, ending in a little bow at each plate. This will make a number of ribbons resembling a May pole. After the luncheon each guest may unfasten the little bow at her place and draw a bunch of violets. The ribbons passing over the top of the vase will hold it firmly in place.

Buttercups.—It must be remembered that this flower closes at night and is therefore not suited for evening decorations. In the center of the table arrange a circle of rock ferns and in the circle thus made place an inverted round pudding dish. Surround it with a large wreath of buttercups. Place the wreath so that half of each fern leaf will project beyond the buttercups. On the pudding dish, the sides of which are hidden by the buttercup wreath, place a fern dish full of growing ferns, and almost hidden among them a green glass vase filled with buttercups. The same idea may be carried out in daisies.

Pansies.—A pretty and original way to decorate the table with pansies is to place in the center of the table upon a glass salver a glass fruit bowl. Fill the fruit bowl and salver with white cornmeal well soaked in cold water, and in this insert the pansy stems. They should be placed as thickly as possible. Around the outer edge arrange a border of maidenhair fern. An oblong dish arranged in similar manner should be placed at each end of the table.

Rainbow Luncheon.—A pretty way to serve refreshments to a number of people is to have a "rainbow" luncheon. Have as many tables as there are colors in the rainbow. The center table may be white. For the decorations use as many of the spring flowers as are obtainable. Colored candles will help to carry out the idea. The menu should be arranged to correspond in color.

Jonquils and Narcissuses.—A beautiful centerpiece for a luncheon is a large floral ball. The frame may be made of a piece of poultry netting bent into the rough outlines of a ball. Place a shallow bowl inside the netting before it is fastened up. When the framework is set on the table the bowl may be filled with water and the stalks of the jonquils and narcissuses may be stuck in until the netting is entirely hidden by the flowers.

Curried Pork.
Half a pound of cold cooked pork, chopped finely, one shallot, one heaping tablespoonful butter, one egg, one tablespoonful curry powder, one teaspoonful of flour, one teaspoonful salt, one teaspoonful of lemon, one cupful of milk, one tablespoonful of chopped cocoanut, one egg and one dessert spoonful chopped parsley.
Chop the shallot finely and fry it in the butter for a few minutes, then add all the other ingredients and cook for five minutes. Grease a pudding dish, pour in mixture and bake in a moderate oven till just brown. Serve with plain boiled rice.

Tongue and Egg Salad.
Cut cold tongue in thin slices, then cut again into pieces about one inch square. Arrange a layer of tongue on fresh lettuce leaves and on the tongue place a layer of hard-boiled eggs sliced thin, then another layer of tongue, and cover all with a good mayonnaise. Decorate the dish with slices of cold beets and parsley.

Rich Rice Loaf.
Half pound of ground rice, half pound of caster sugar, four eggs. Beat the eggs well together, then add sugar and rice. Beat them all together for 20 minutes. Bake in a moderate oven 40 minutes. Been tried with unfailing success by sender.

Restores Soiled Candles.
If the colored candles used for guest tables and other festive occasions become soiled before they are consumed, they can be nicely washed with a soft brush, white soap and warm water.

Potato Cocoanut Candy.
Take two baked potatoes, mash fine while hot, and stir in one pound confectioners' sugar. To this add enough grated cocoanut to stiffen and flavor if desired. Drop with spoon on plate to harden.

To Clean Furniture.
Take tepid water and castile soap, wash furniture and rinse well; then take a piece of old silk and rub until it shines. You can make it look like new.

Easy Fumigation.
Dried lemon peel sprinkled over coals will destroy any disagreeable odor about the house.

WHERE THE FAMILY IS SMALL

Excellent Method of Preparing Hot Bread to Be Used in Small Quantities.

The recipes for hot bread in the popular cook books are for large quantities, and an attempt to divide them usually results in failure, as it throws the ingredients out of their proper proportion. Doubtless there are readers of this page whose families consist of two or so, who will appreciate the following thoroughly tested recipes for small quantities:

Corn Muffins.—Mix one cup of corn meal, one tablespoon flour, half teaspoonful salt and scant half teaspoonful soda together; add yolk of one egg and three-fourths cup of sour milk and beat hard; add beaten white of egg and cook in well greased gem pans. This makes six muffins.

Biscuit.—One cup flour, one teaspoon baking powder, half teaspoonful salt, dessertspoonful lard and butter mixed. Mix with sweet milk to make soft dough. This makes eight biscuits.

Wheat Muffins.—One egg, three-fourths cup of milk, one tablespoonful sugar, half teaspoon salt, one teaspoonful baking powder sifted with enough flour to make stiff batter. This makes six muffins.

One cup flour, half teaspoonful salt, one heaping tablespoonful lard, mixed with a fork, and enough ice water added to hold paste together makes crust for one pie.

The Home.

Apples cored for baking are delicious filled with orange marmalade and a little butter and sugar.

To freshen blue serge, sponge it with blue water. Afterward hang the garment in the air to dry.

When beating eggs observe that there is no grease on the whisk, as it will prevent the eggs from frothing.

Try a little lemon and salt mixed the next time a price mark sticks to the bottom of china dishes or bric-a-brac.

Chestnuts have considerable food value. The boiled and mashed pulp may be used as one would use meat or vegetables, even croquettes being made of it.

When making a flour paste to apply to wall paper always add some dissolved alum. The alum not only makes the starch hold better, but it will kill any insects in the walls.

To skim grease from soup in a hurry, use square sheets of clean tissue paper on the surface of the soup. Lay them on one at a time, lift off lightly and every bit of fat comes off.

Dutch Apple Pudding.
One pint flour, one teaspoon cream of tartar, one-half teaspoon soda, one-half teaspoon salt, one egg, one cup milk, two tablespoons butter, four large apples. Mix salt, soda and cream of tartar with flour and sift three times. Rub butter in flour, beat egg light, add milk, pour on flour and mix quickly and thoroughly. Spread the dough about half inch deep in a buttered pan. Have the apples pared and cut into eighths. Stick into the dough in rows, sprinkle with two tablespoons sugar. Bake in a hot oven 25 minutes and eat with sugar and cream or plain sauce and see if you don't say it is fine.

Sardine Crusts.
Have some oblong slices of bread a quarter of an inch thick, and a little wider and a little longer than a sardine. Meanwhile free the sardines from the oil and skins and lay them with a broad knife on a buttered, flat dish. Dust them with paprika, salt, chopped capers and minced parsley, and set into the oven. Then drop the slices of bread into frying fat to brown and crisp. Have the bread fried at just the time the sardines are thoroughly heated, and lay the sardines on the bread to serve. Have very hot when serving. Just a coating of tomato puree, having it hot, on the toast will for many improve the flavor of these crusts.

Brown Sugar Cookies.
One cup brown sugar, one cup butter (or part beef drippings), creamed together, one egg, one tablespoon milk, two cups pastry flour, one scant teaspoon baking powder. Keep on ice over night and in the morning they can be rolled as thin as a wafer. Cut with a doughnut or cookie cutter and watch carefully while baking, as they scorch easily.

Lister Pudding.
Half pound of flour, quarter of a pound of lard or butter, quarter of a pound of sugar, one teaspoonful of baking powder, one egg, and a little milk. Mix together flour, sugar and baking powder; rub in lard or butter, beat egg, and mix all with a little milk. Line basin with jam. Steam two or three hours.

To Blanche Almonds.
Drop the nut meats into boiling water, then skim out and drop into cold water. The skins can then be rubbed off easily.

Creamy Sauce.
Cream one-quarter cup of butter, add three-quarters cup of powdered sugar slowly then two tablespoons of milk and three-quarters teaspoon of lemon flavoring. Set over hot water long enough to soften, but not melt the butter, take up, beat hard and serve.

Cold-Water Cookies.
Two cups sugar, one cup butter, one cup cold water, one-half teaspoon soda, one teaspoon cream tartar, flour to roll.

DESERVED RAISE IN SALARY.

Theatrical Advance Agent Had Neat Scheme That Brought Him Popularity.

The value of the ability to know faces and the names that go with them is a recognizable asset among salesmen and all people who have dealings with a large number of persons. An advance agent of a theatrical concern, finding that he was not gifted that way, hit upon a new scheme for helping matters along. Immediately after leaving a town he card-indexed every man with whom he came in contact—reporters, hotel men, managers and merchants. He wrote a short description of their facial appearance, together with some incident which occurred while he was with them. The next year, while on the train, he would study the cards relating to the people of the next town he was to visit. The result was that whenever he met a man he saw the year before he would say something like this:

"Why, hello, Jackson! The last time I saw you we were still laughing over that fellow who slipped on the ice with a pail of milk in his hands. I have thought of it a thousand times since."

A raise in salary greeted the advance agent the next year, for he had every town his way long before the show reached it.

COTTON BAGGING TO BE FREE

STEEL COMBINE ALSO SCARED

Texas Comes Within Seven Votes of Placing Cotton Ties on Free List.

Washington, June 28.—The two amendments offered by Senator Culbertson in behalf of the cotton growers were taken up by the senate today. They were to put cotton bagging and cotton ties on the free list. Senator Culbertson won a clean-cut victory for free cotton bagging and with the aid of several southern senators came within seven votes of winning a victory over the steel trust in his fight for free cotton ties. Senator Culbertson won the fight for free cotton bagging with the senate finance committee, and when Senator McLaughlin called up the amendment today it was adopted without debate by a viva voce vote.

It was known all along that there would be a hard fight on the part of the finance committee against making the steel trust give up its protective tariff on cotton ties, but the closeness of the vote was a surprise to the committee. Senator Culbertson conducted this fight vigorously, being ably assisted by Senator Smith of South Carolina and Senator Money of Mississippi. In opening the debate Senator Culbertson pointed out it required about eight and one-half pounds of cotton ties to properly bind a bale of cotton. Under the Dingley act ties were subject to a duty of 1-2 a pound or a duty of 4 1-4 per bale. This duty was prohibitive. A few cotton ties were imported. It is estimated under the senate bill that the revenue will amount to only $2,150.45.

"This tax against the cotton planters," said Senator Culbertson, "will amount in the aggregate to $550,000 on 13,000,000 bales of cotton. It is proposed to be reduced in the senate committee bill to .3 of a cent per pound, which will still tax the planters $330,000.

"It is claimed and sworn to in the testimony before the committee on Ways and Means of the House of Representatives that 9 per cent of the cotton ties used in this country are manufactured by the United States Steel Trust, binding twice for the western farmers has been placed on the free list. There is no logical reason why cotton ties should not be placed on the free list, as proposed in this amendment, especially as the only beneficiary in this country is the most gigantic monopoly that exists today in America.

"It is said, as one of the objections to this measure that the farmers receive back the amount which they have paid for the cotton ties and the cotton bagging. I will ask you to have read a voluntary letter written to me on May 27 by C. L. McWilliam of New Orleans on this subject so that the Senators may understand that this claim of the farmers being reimbursed as it were, is altogether unfounded."

This letter repeats to Senator Culbertson the replies made by W. O. Thompson, president of the New Orleans Cotton Exchange; Henry G. Hester and other high authorities on cotton, to a telegram of inquiry by Representative Burleson on this subject. These replies establish conclusively that 6 per cent tare is deducted from each bale of cotton for ties and bagging amounting to $2.70, which the farmer loses, besides the 80c which he has to pay for his ties and bagging.

Although Senator Culbertson and his allies were strongly entrenched with facts and figures, the friends of the steel and trust in the Senate were unmoved. Senators Dupont and Johnson of North Dakota, who have voted pretty consistently with Senator Aldrich, came over, however, to Senator Culbertson on this proposition and made the vote thirty-one in favor of the Culbertson amendment to thirty-eight against it. The Senators who voted for free cotton ties were Messrs. Bacon, Bankhead, Beveridge, Bristow, Brown, Chamberlain, Clay, Crawford, Culbertson, Cummins, Daniels, Davis, Dupont, Fletcher, Foster, Frazier, Johnson, Johnston, La Follette, McEnery, Martin, Money, Nelson, Newlands, Overman, Owen, Payner, Smith of South Carolina, Stone, Tallaferro, Taylor and Tillman.

On this vote Senator Culbertson did not lose a single Democrat and held the seven progressives besides winning over two stand-patters, Dupont and Johnson. There were, however, a number of absentees, among them Senators Bailey, Clark and Shirley on the Democratic side and Clapp and Dooliver of the Progressives. A number of high protection Republicans were also absent.

While a victory was won in the Senate for cotton bagging, the fate of that amendment still is uncertain, as it will have to be fought out in conference.

FOURTH OF JULY WARNING.

Oklahoma Officer Issues Circular Regarding Manner of Treating Victims of Explosives.

Shawnee, Ok., June 28.—The people of Oklahoma are warned of the danger attending Fourth of July celebrations in the following address issued by State Health Commissioner Mahri:

To the People of Oklahoma: The approach of our National holiday is to many a source of considerable anxiety. Its celebration is too often followed by accidents that maim, especially those caused by explosives, and often followed by tetanus, or commonly called lockjaw. In view of these accidents we would warn the parents or others having charge of children of the great danger attending these accidents, especially those due to toy pistols and like explosives. However, should any accident occur, we would recommend, first, freely incise the wound; second, carefully and thoroughly remove from the wound any particles of foreign matter; third, cauterize the wound thoroughly with 25 per cent carbolic acid; fourth, apply loosely a wet pack of boric acid; fifth give free doses of anti-tetanic serum, if the same may be had. A physician should always be called at once in these cases.

WEST WANTS STATEMENT OF REPORT PROBED.

Refers to Document Sent Executive by State Dispensary Examiner and Inspector Taylor.

Guthrie, Ok., June 28.—Attorney General West, whose name was mentioned in State Examiner and Inspector Taylor's report as to the condition of the state dispensary, in connection with a $3,402.92 item used in enforcing the prohibition law, has written a letter to Gov. Haskell, requesting that inquiry be made as to his part in the transactions, and names to act with Mr. Taylor, in making the probe. Gov. Haskell and also Justice Williams of the Supreme Court. He insists that itemized statements of all moneys he handled in connection with prohibition enforcement will be found in vouchers in the state auditor's office. In naming Governor Haskell and Justice Williams to act with Mr. Taylor, Attorney General West adds:

"I think it is so far understood that none of you have at any time been my nearest and dearest friends and none are hostile to Mr. Taylor, and none of you will seek to cover up anything for my benefit."

The report referred to, published Sunday morning, was one in which the State Examiner and Inspector called attention to what he considered the incompleteness of the dispensary books, referring particularly to amounts of money used for enforcement, without apparent detail record in the dispensary of the expenditures.

Report also shows that the dispensary in connection with enforcement met has been costing the state over $2,500 per month more than the profits.

Gov. Haskell received the report early last week, but returned it to the state examiner and inspector on Saturday, when informed that it had been made public.

Today the Governor, referring to newspaper articles, addressed a letter to State Examiner Taylor, requesting specific information and whether there were charges to be made, and if so, he wanted them made plainly. To this the examiner had not replied at the close of the day. He remarked in the presence of the newspaper reporters that if those interested would read the official report and not the newspapers there would be no explanation to ask for.

Attorney General West's connection with the prohibition enforcement and the $3,400 sum, is explained in another communication he addressed to State Examiner and Inspector Taylor. He says:

"Every one should know, and your office undoubtedly does, that the attorney general has no official or unofficial connection with the agency, and never has had. Previous to the appointment of Mr. Caldwell (state enforcement attorney) certain moneys were disbursed to detectives who were doing the work in the enforcement of prohibition, at my direction. If the persons who were to receive this money and who were employed in this secret work had had their names put upon the voucher at the time the money was disbursed to them, and thus their identity had become public property in the Auditor's office, their employment would have been useless. In fact, the great danger of the employment of detectives is, that as soon as they become known, at that moment they become useless. Therefore, my name was used as a device and a cloak of their identity, to be temporary only. I would make a request of the governor that a certain sum of money be furnished to detectives, and in each and every instance the governor O. K'd the voucher, and therefore the agency handled and managed the proposition and disbursed it, and not myself. The voucher was payable to me, and in each instance I paid the money to the detectives and received a written receipt of them for it. That receipt was afterward in each instance placed on file in the Auditor's office, and I believe is there now.

LIKES THE CONDITION.

Pure Food Inspector Works at McAlester.

McAlester, Okla., June 28.—J. M. Hays, State Pure Food Inspector, has been here inspecting the hotels, restaurants, bakeries, ice cream factories and all manner of places where food products are sold. He visited the two State prisons, the one in the old Federal jail and the one at the site of the new prison, the latter being but little more than a camp. He says that prior to coming here he has been all over the State and has visited all kinds of places, but that the condition of the kitchens and the bake shop at the prisons here, for cleanliness, far exceeds anything he has found in the State, not excepting the large hotels, in their kitchen work.

There is one bake shop for the two prisons and it is established at the old Federal jail and the transfer of the large quantity of bread from that point to the site of the new prison, where more than 500 men are at work, is attended with such precautions that all chance of contamination is avoided.

Mr. Hays was particularly pleased with the sanitary conditions generally surrounding the prisons and praised Warden R. M. Dick and Deputy Warden Gus Tubbs for what they have accomplished, having had virtually nothing to start with when they brought the large number of prisoners here from Kansas.

TO HAVE MORE BANKS.

When Interest Rate Is High and Accommodations Poor Competition Will Be Invited.

Guthrie, Ok., June 28.—The State Banking Department has adopted a resolution, holding that when banks of a community are charging unreasonable interest and do not afford the public proper accommodations the state's policy will be to create competition in such community by authorizing additional banks.

The resolution grew out of an application to charter a state bank at Tahmina, LeFlore county, which the state banking commissioner refused on the ground that the population and business did not justify additional banks.

Franchise Election.

Council Passes Proclamation for Election July 20.

At the meeting of the city council last evening a proclamation was passed calling for a special election to be held July 29th to determine whether or not the Ada Oil & Gas Co. shall be granted a twenty year franchise in the city of Ada.

The company is anxious to get the franchise through as early as possible, as they report favorable progress with their leases and other operations, and in the event oil is immediately found they want to commence the work of piping the city at once.

Woodmen Circle Surprised.

Angelo Grove No. 42, Ada, Okla.

Monday night June 28, being their regular meeting night all the officers and goodly number of members present, were in the I. O. O. F. hall and while they were performing their solemn duties the Woodmen broke in upon them and to their surprise served them with delicious ice cream and waiters. After everybody had been served some interesting talks on the good of both orders were heard from the members. After a little order of business Grove adjourned declaring it a most enjoyable evening and hoping the Woodmen would surprise them again soon. Look out for the W. O. W. and Circle floats on parade July 5th.

Billy in the Toils.

Nickel Billy, colored, who knocked Nancy Titus in the head with a beer bottle down in the flats Sunday and made his escape, was apprehended by Holdenville officers yesterday and placed in custody together with his victim who had joined him at that place. Chief Culver left for Holdenville this afternoon and will bring them back to Ada for trial.

MAY SUE EXPRESS COMPANY.

American Sued to Expect Litigation Contesting Order Prohibiting Interstate Liquor Shipments.

Guthrie, Ok., June 28.—It is learned semi-officially today that in issuing its order to Oklahoma agents not to deliver any more interstate shipments of whiskey in this state, the American Express Company anticipates a suit against it in St. Louis, Kansas City, Fort Smith, or some neighboring city to Oklahoma, to compel it to deliver such shipments, thus bringing the matter squarely before the courts to determine what is the right of the Oklahoma officials in enforcing the state prohibition law so as to interfere with such deliveries. It is also learned today that the Wells-Fargo company will carry to the highest courts an appeal from the recent order of the state corporation commission fixing a schedule of express rates in Oklahoma.

Prominent W. C. T. U. Workers in Ada.

Our local W C T U of this city has been blessed with some good things the last few days. On last Friday night Miss Belle Kearney was with us in a great lecture in First Baptist church. Miss Kearney is one of the chosen ones having given up her home life and all that society means to a talented young woman to devote her life to this work has been round the world in the work and her matchless oratory has been heard for our cause in almost every civilized country under the sun. Her coming was a help to every one who heard her. No woman (and no man as for that) who has an opportunity to hear Miss Kearney can do herself justice and miss a chance to hear this devoted woman. Sunday we had with us for two lectures, one of our devotee ones from a sister state Mrs. A. C. Zehner. Dallas Tex. At 11 a. m. she was heard in the Christian church. Her subject was "The Ideal Love". It was a great sermon on the old and ever new theme in which all find a comfort. Miss Zehner's style of logic and oratory is peculiarly her own and is comparable to none unless to that unique preacher of wonderful gifts divine inspiration Chas. H. Spurgeon. Here is the Spurgeon temperament, and her heart is as full of love and divine fire as any minister who has appeared at any time. She carries a peculiar inspiration to all who hear her and was said by one of the ministers introducing her

The Devil has no worse enemy in all this land than Mrs. Zehner. She occupied the pulpit of M. E. church at the evening service, and her text was "Go Forward To those who did not hear her it can never be missed. Her presence was made the occasion to do something for the effort that is now being made to place a fountain on the public square of this city and something of $10.00 were raised for that purpose. She also inspired a number of the good women to join in the work of the W C T U and altogether her presence was a benediction which we much needed and a help which we shall not soon forget.

In this connection I feel to call attention to the interesting local D. M. Merest Medal Contests which our Union is having. A number of the young people are taking great interest in the work and the result is we are having some productions that are worth hearing. Please come out to hear these young people when you have a chance and thus encourage your home boys and girls. The good work which they are doing.

GEORGE LINDSTON TRIAL

Continued by County Attorney for Purpose of Securing More Evidence.
The case of George Lindston charged with attempt to steal liquor from the booze ware room at the Katy depot came up in Justice Brown's court today at 1:30. The county was represented by J. W. Dean and the defendant by Senator Roddie. Several witnesses were examined but no definite evidence seemed to develop consequently the county attorney adjourned the case until tomorrow when it is stated that they will have secured more witnesses.

PROPER CARE OF THE INSAUE

City of Ghoul, in Holland, Takes Care of These Unfortunates and its Guests.

One of the most remarkable places in Europe, of which no tourist on pleasure bent ever takes notice, is the "City of the Insane," by which name Ghoul, near Antwerp, has been known for generations. About 1,500 men and women, afflicted with insanity in all its forms, live there, and have a happy being as the "guests" of the inhabitants, who know by experience how to treat the unfortunate ones. In the streets, in the places of amusement, the cafes and workshops these patients may be found, and nowhere is there the remotest suggestion of restraint apparent. The board ranges from 240 to 2,400 marks a year, and, no matter how small the amount may be, the patient is always the favored member of the family. He has the first right to the most comfortable chair, and the head of the table belongs to him. He receives the most attention, and this he learns to appreciate and to endeavor to maintain by living down his illness. Even the children know how to treat the demented people. The dangerous ones are sent to another settlement and to institutions. It is wonderful how considerate, careful and kind the simple people are toward their charges, and a peep into the community would probably terrify physicians who had never heard of and could not appreciate the good which is being done in this "City of the Insane."

HORROR OF AFRICAN NIGHT.

Traveler Describes Peculiar Conditions That Exist in Regions of the Dark Continent

Caroline Kirkland, in her book on "Some African Highways," writes of night in the dark continent. "There is nothing so black as an African night, and I think that it is because the earth, being a deep red, offers no reflection to the faint starlight, such as we get in other lands. Instead it wallows up what slight glow there may be, and gives to the darkness a dense, velvety quality not to be found anywhere else. Overhead the stars glare more brilliantly than in northern latitudes, but they seem to cast no light, and the night is palpable, suffocating, appalling and filled with a nameless horror which is quite indescribable."

In a single sentence the same writer gives a forcible idea of the sleeping sickness. "While there is nothing acutely distressing about this manner of dying, nothing to equal the terror of other vital diseases, like cancer or tuberculosis, there is something peculiarly sinister in the slow, stealthy, irresistible approach of death, whose course no known remedy can stay or alter."

Of African lions Miss Kirkland writes: "As a rule it is only old lions who attack human beings. They grow too decrepit to be able to catch the more agile antelopes who are their lawful prey, so, goaded by a hunger which age cannot wither or lessen, they pounce on unwary mortals."

Boots and Gloves.

In a recent divorce case in Scotland it was testified that a lady, searching her maid's trunks found 200 pairs of her own old gloves therein. "Abroad," said a dealer, agent this happening, "it isn't unusual for a woman of fashion to have 200 pairs of gloves. At the sale of the duchess of Somerset's things, over 2,000 pairs, all as good as new, were put up."

"You see, gloves are cheaper abroad. Over there you'll pay a dollar for an article that would cost you $2.50 here. But aside from that, foreign women incline to go in more for gloves—and boots, too—than we do. The foreign woman is apt to be better gloved and booted than her American sister."

It Was the Cat.

The yellow-haired hostess rushed suddenly to the center table, took all the papers off and smoothed down a thick, fluffy yellow skin that lay there. "It's my cat," she explained. "My poor little pet cat that died last spring. Isn't it beautiful?" She was a lovely cat. You see her picture up there on the wall when she was alive. Lovely little kitty!" she purred to the skin, while some of her guests shuddered and one whispered to the other: "I don't see how she could do it. I'd rather have the skin of my husband on the table or floor than my pet cat."

Children Are Victims.

A member of the Society for Political Study in New York said the other day that the factories claim more victims than the rivers in China ever did, more little children going to their death from these places. The mines and the sweatshops are worse than the factories, she said. In the course of the discussion the point was brought out that there is doubt as to whether the mothers in China ever do throw their children into the rivers.

Willin'.

A certain newly elected congressman met a society bud of Washington at his first reception. "Do you like Balzac?" she queried. "Well, I never willin'," drawled the westerner. "But I'm willin' to take a hand."—Lippincott's

The Touch Artistic.

FROM COLD MUTTON FOR THE LUNCHEON

MANY EXCELLENT DISHES MAY BE PREPARED.

Mistake That is Too Frequently Made in Cooking Hash—Grilled or Deviled It May Suit Tastes of Many.

Very few people enjoy cold mutton unless it is served during hot weather with a daintily prepared salad, and even then a frequent repetition becomes monotonous, and the time comes when the bone is so much in evidence that re-cooking the remainder becomes necessary, in order to prevent it being wasted.

The most common method of re-heating cold mutton is in the form of a hash, but in very few cases is it successfully made, for most people make the mistake of putting the cold meat into hot gravy and allowing it to boil. The cold meat should be put into cold gravy, and should be kept under boiling point, until just before serving it is brought to the boil for one minute, so as to cook the flour with which it is thickened. There are many other ways of re-cooking cold mutton which would give variety, and prevent its palling on the appetite.

The value of the bones must not be overlooked. The meat should be cut off very closely from them, and they should be placed in cold water and then boiled for several hours to make a supply of stock, useful as a foundation for soup or in the manufacture of dainty dishes from the remains of the meat. Fat which seems in excess should be trimmed off and melted down to form drippings, but a large mass of cold fat such as is found at the edge of a shoulder of mutton should be chopped finely and used as suet in the making of boiling puddings.

The simplest and quickest method of re-cooking mutton is by grilling it, but for this purpose only the largest and most suitable pieces should be employed. The meat should be brushed over with salad oil, sprinkled with pepper and salt, and grilled for a few minutes on both sides over a clear fire, which should be sprinkled with a little salt to make it burn clearer. If the pieces are brushed with oil and dipped in curry powder before they are grilled, they can be served as deviled mutton, and in this form they make a delicious dish.

Curried mutton is also excellent, for although fresh meat makes the best curry, one made from cold meat is not to be despised if it is carefully made. Peel and core two medium sized apples and cut them small, and peel and slice two onions. Fry the apple and onion in an ounce of dripping, but do not let them burn. Mix a heaped teaspoonful of curry powder and a tablespoonful of flour into a smooth paste with half a pint of cold stock. Stir it slowly into the frying pan, and pour it until it boils and thickens. Pass the curry mixture through a wire sieve, add pepper and salt to taste, and when it is cool add about one and one-half pound of neat pieces of cold mutton. Allow the mutton to get heated very slowly, and when it is almost at the boiling point serve it in a border of rice which has been boiled so that the grains are distinct.

Scrambled Eggs and Clams.
Rinse and drain two dozen good-sized clams and chop them fine. Beat together three eggs, add to them three tablespoonfuls of clam juice. Heat one tablespoonful of butter in a frying pan, turn in the clams and shake and turn occasionally until nice and brown. Pour in the eggs, add seasoning to taste and stir until the mixture is a soft scramble, then pour over hot buttered toast.

Egg Surprises.
Required: Half a pound of sausage meat, three eggs, egg and bread-crumbs, deep frying fat, chopped parsley, and made mustard.
Boil the eggs hard and remove the shells. Divide the sausage meat into six portions, add chopped parsley to each and some made mustard, and roll each one out separately in flour. Then roll half an egg in each.

To Clean Silver Quickly.
Place two quarts of potato peelings and one quart of water in an iron frying pan or spider, cover and boil ten minutes; then drop in as many silver spoons, knives and forks as the water will cover; continue the boiling and in less than ten minutes they will look like new. Remove the silver, wash in usual manner, rubbing well with dry, soft towel.

Red Pepper Sandwich.
Take one-half pound American cheese and small can red peppers, "Pimentos Morrones." Put cheese peppers through meat grinder. Then add enough mayonnaise dressing so it will be thin enough to spread. Cut thin slices of bread, butter, and use filling as above.

Baked Onions.
Parboil six large onions, slice off the tops and remove the centers and chop fine with breadcrumbs and bits of cold meats. Add one egg, salt, pepper, and tomato juice. Fill onion shells and cover with breadcrumbs dotted with bits of butter and grated cheese, and bake.

For Washing Tooth Brushes.
Tooth brushes may be washed in a strong solution of salt and water.

SOME GOOD METHODS OF DECORATING THE TABLE.

Pretty Arrangements Add So Much to the Enjoyment of the Meal—"Rainbow" Scheme is One of the Best.

Violet Luncheon.—In the center of the table stand a large cut glass bowl on a violet embroidered center-piece. Fill this bowl with smilax and pink carnations. In the center of the bowl place a tall green glass vase and make it secure by passing four lengths of ribbon across the top of it and fasten the ends on the edge of the centerpiece with little bows. In the green vase place eight bunches of violets. From each bouquet run violet baby ribbon, ending in a little bow at each plate. This will make a number of ribbons resembling a May pole. After the luncheon each guest may unfasten the little bow at her place and draw a bunch of violets. The ribbons passing over the top of the vase will hold it firmly in place.

Buttercups.—It must be remembered that this flower closes at night and is therefore not suited for evening decorations. In the center of the table arrange a circle of rock ferns and in the circle thus made place an inverted round pudding dish. Surround it with a large wreath of buttercups. Place the wreath so that half of each fern leaf will project beyond the buttercups. On the pudding dish, the sides of which are hidden by the buttercup wreath, place a fern dish full of growing ferns, and almost hidden among them a green glass vase filled with buttercups. The same idea may be carried out in daisies.

Pansies.—A pretty and original way to decorate the table with pansies is to place in the center of the table upon a glass salver a glass fruit bowl. Fill the fruit bowl and salver with white cornmeal well soaked in cold water, and in this insert the pansy stems. They should be placed as thickly as possible. Around the outer edge arrange a border of maidenhair fern. An oblong dish arranged in similar manner should be placed at each end of the table.

Rainbow Luncheon.—A pretty way to serve refreshments to a number of people is to have a "rainbow" luncheon. Have as many tables as there are colors in the rainbow. The center table may be white. For the decorations use as many of the spring flowers as are obtainable. Colored candles will help to carry out the idea. The menu should be arranged to correspond in color.

Jonquils and Narcissuses.—A beautiful centerpiece for a luncheon is a large floral ball. The frame may be made of a piece of poultry netting bent into the rough outlines of a ball. Place a shallow bowl inside the netting before it is fastened up. When the framework is set on the table the bowl may be filled with water and the stalks of the jonquils and narcissuses may be stuck in until the netting is entirely hidden by the flowers.

Curried Pork.
Half a pound of cold cooked pork, chopped finely, one shallot, one heaping tablespoonful butter, one egg, one tablespoonful curry powder, one teaspoonful of flour, one teaspoonful salt one teaspoonful of lemon, one cupful of milk, one tablespoonful of chopped coconut, one egg and one dessert spoonful chopped parsley.
Chop the shallot finely and fry it in the butter for a few minutes, then add all the other ingredients and cook for five minutes. Grease a pudding dish, pour in mixture and bake in a moderate oven till just brown. Serve with plain boiled rice.

Tongue and Egg Salad.
Cut cold tongue in thin slices, then cut again into pieces about one inch square. Arrange a layer of tongue on fresh lettuce leaves and on the tongue place a layer of hard-boiled eggs sliced thin, then another layer of tongue, and cover all with a good mayonnaise. Decorate the dish with slices of cold beets and parsley.

Rich Rice Loaf.
Half pound of ground rice, half pound of caster sugar, four eggs. Beat the eggs well together, then add sugar and rice. Beat them all together for 20 minutes. Bake in a moderate oven 40 minutes. Been tried with unfailing success by sender.

Restores Soiled Candles.
If the colored candles used for guest tables and other festive occasions become soiled before they are consumed, they can be nicely washed with a soft brush, white soap and warm water.

Potato Coconut Candy.
Take two baked potatoes, mash fine while hot, and stir in one pound confectioners' sugar. To this add enough grated coconut to stiffen and flavor if desired. Drop with spoon on plate to harden.

To Clean Furniture.
Take tepid water and castile soap, wash furniture and rinse well; then take a piece of old silk and rub until it shines. You can make it look like new.

Easy Fumigation.
Dried lemon peel sprinkled over coals will destroy any disagreeable odor about the house.

WHERE THE FAMILY IS SMALL

Excellent Method of Preparing Hot Bread to Be Used in Small Quantities.

The recipes for hot bread in the popular cook books are for large quantities, and an attempt to divide them usually results in failure, as it throws the ingredients out of their proper proportion. Doubtless there are readers of this page whose families consist of two or so, who will appreciate the following thoroughly tested recipes for small quantities:

Corn Muffins.—Mix one cup of corn meal, one tablespoon flour, half teaspoonful salt and scant half teaspoonful soda together; add yolk of one egg and three-fourths cup of sour milk and beat hard; add beaten white of egg and cook in well greased gem pans. This makes six muffins.

Biscuits.—One cup flour, one teaspoon baking powder, half teaspoonful salt, dessertspoonful lard and butter mixed. Mix with sweet milk to make soft dough. This makes eight biscuits.

Wheat Muffins.—One egg, three-fourths cup of milk, one tablespoonful sugar, half teaspoon salt, one teaspoonful baking powder sifted with enough flour to make stiff batter. This makes six muffins.

One cup flour, half teaspoonful salt, one heaping tablespoonful lard, mixed with a fork, and enough ice water added to hold paste together makes crust for one pie.

The Home.

Apples cored for baking are delicious filled with orange marmalade and a little butter and sugar.

To freshen blue serge, sponge it with blue water. Afterward hang the garment in the air to dry.

When beating eggs observe that there is no grease on the whisk, as it will prevent the eggs from frothing.

Try a little lemon and salt mixed the next time a price mark sticks to the bottom of china dishes or bric-a-brac.

Chestnuts have considerable food value. The boiled and mashed pulp may be used as one would use meat or vegetables, even croquettes being made of it.

When making a flour paste to apply to wall paper always add some dissolved alum. The alum not only makes the starch hold better, but it will kill any insects in the walls.

To skim grease from soup in a hurry, use square sheets of clean tissue paper on the surface of the soup. Lay them on one at a time, lift off lightly and every bit of fat comes off.

Dutch Apple Pudding.
One pint flour, one teaspoon cream of tartar, one-half teaspoon soda, one-half teaspoon salt, one egg, one cup milk, two tablespoons butter, four large apples. Mix salt, soda and cream of tartar with flour and sift three times. Rub butter in flour, beat egg light, add milk, pour on flour and mix quickly and thoroughly. Spread the dough about half inch deep in a buttered pan. Have the apples pared and cut into eighths. Stick into the dough in rows, sprinkle with two tablespoons sugar. Bake in a hot oven 25 minutes and eat with sugar and cream or plain sauce and see if you don't say it is fine.

Sardine Crusts.
Have some oblong slices of bread a quarter of an inch thick, and a little wider and a little longer than a sardine. Meanwhile free the sardines from the oil and skins and lay them with a broad knife on a buttered, flat dish. Dust them with paprika, salt, chopped capers and minced parsley, and set into the oven. Then drop the slices of bread into frying fat to brown and crisp. Have the bread fried at just the time the sardines are thoroughly heated, and lay the sardines on the bread to serve. Have very hot when serving. Just a coating of tomato puree, having it hot, on the toast will for many improve the flavor of these crusts.

Brown Sugar Cookies.
One cup brown sugar, one cup butter (or part beef drippings), creamed together, one egg, one tablespoon milk, two cups pastry flour, one scant teaspoon baking powder. Keep on ice over night and in the morning they can be rolled as thin as a wafer. Cut with a doughnut or cookie cutter and watch carefully while baking, as they scorch easily.

Liter Pudding.
Half pound of flour, quarter of a pound of lard or butter, quarter of a pound of sugar, one teaspoonful of baking powder, one egg, and a little milk. Mix together flour, sugar and baking powder; rub in lard or butter, beat egg, and mix all with a little milk. Line basin with jam. Steam two or three hours.

To Blanch Almonds.
Drop the nut meats into boiling water, then skim out and drop into cold water. The skins can then be rubbed off easily.

Creamy Sauce.
Cream one-quarter cup of butter, add three-quarters cup of powdered sugar slowly then two tablespoons of milk and three-quarters teaspoon of lemon flavoring. Set over hot water long enough to soften, but not melt the butter, take up, beat hard and serve.

Cold-Water Cookies.
Two cups sugar, one cup butter, one cup cold water, one-half teaspoon soda, one teaspoon cream tartar, flour to roll.

DESERVED RAISE IN SALARY.

Theatrical Advance Agent Had Nest Scheme That Brought Him Popularity.

The value of the ability to know faces and the names that go with them is a recognizable asset among salesmen and all people who have dealings with a large number of persons. An advance agent of a theatrical concern, finding that he was not gifted that way, hit upon a new scheme for helping matters along. Immediately after leaving a town he card-indexed every man with whom he came in contact—reporters, hotel men, managers and merchants. He wrote a short description of their facial appearance, together with some incident which occurred while he was with them. The next year, while on the train, he would study the cards relating to the people of the next town he was to visit. The result was that whenever he met a man he saw the year before he would say something like this:

"Why, hello, Jackson! The last time I saw you we were still laughing over that fellow who slipped on the ice with a pall of milk in his hands. I have thought of it a thousand times since."

A raise in salary greeted the advance agent the next year, for he had every town his way long before the show reached it.

COTTON BAGGING TO BE FREE

STEEL COMBINE ALSO SCARED

Texas Comes Within Seven Votes of Placing Cotton Ties on Free List.

Washington, June 28.—The two amendments offered by Senator Culbertson in behalf of the cotton growers were taken up by the senate today. They were to put cotton bagging and cotton ties on the free list. Senator Culbertson won a clean-cut victory for free cotton bagging and with the aid of several southern senators came within seven votes of winning a victory over the steel trust in his fight for free cotton ties. Senator Culbertson won the fight for free cotton bagging with the senate finance committee, and when Senator McLaughlin called up the amendment today it was adopted without debate by a viva voce vote.

It was known all along that there would be a hard fight on the part of the finance committee against making the steel trust give up its protective tariff on cotton ties, but the closeness of the vote was a surprise to the committee. Senator Culbertson conducted this fight vigorously, being ably assisted by Senator Smith of South Carolina and Senator Money of Mississippi. In opening the debate Senator Culbertson pointed out it requires about eight and one-half pounds of cotton ties to properly bind a bale of cotton. Under the Dingley act ties were subject to a duty of 1-2c a pound or a duty of 4-1c per bale. This duty was prohibitive. A few cotton ties were imported. It is estimated under the senate bill that the revenue will amount to only $2,150,446.

"This tax against the cotton planters," said Senator Culbertson, "will amount in the aggregate to $550,000 on 13,000,000 bales of cotton. It is proposed to be reduced in the senate committee bill to 3 of a cent per pound, which will still tax the planters $330,000.

"It is claimed and sworn to in the testimony before the committee on Ways and Means of the House of Representatives that 9 per cent of the cotton ties used in this country are manufactured by the United States Steel Trust. Binding twine for the western farmers has been placed on the free list. There is no logical reason why cotton ties should not be placed on the free list, as proposed in this amendment, especially as the only beneficiary in this country is the most gigantic monopoly that exist today in America.

"It is said, as one of the objections to this measure that the farmers receive back the amount which they have paid for the cotton ties. If the cotton bagging, it will add 3 have read a voluntary letter written to me on May 27 by C. L. McMillan of New Orleans on this subject so that the Senators may understand that this claim of the farmers being reimbursed as it were, is altogether unfounded."

This letter repeats to Senator Culbertson the replies made by W. O. Thompson, president of the New Orleans Cotton Exchange; Henry G. Hester and other high authorities on cotton, to a telegram of inquiry by Representative Burleson on this subject. These replies establish conclusively that 6 per cent tare is deducted from each bale of cotton for ties and bagging amounting to $2.70, which the farmer loses, besides the 80c which he has to pay for his ties and bagging.

Although Senator Culbertson and his allies were strongly entrenched with facts and figures, the friends of the steel and trust in the Senate were unmoved. Senators Dupont and Johnson of North Dakota, who have voted pretty consistently with Senator Aldrich, came over, however, to Senator Culbertson on this proposition and made the vote thirty-one in favor of the Culbertson amendment to thirty-eight against it. The Senators who voted for free cotton ties were Messrs. Bacon, Bankhead, Beveridge, Bristow, Brown, Chamberlain, Clay, Crawford, Culbertson, Cummins, Danforth, Davis, Dupont, Fletcher, Foster, Frazier, Johnson, Johnston, LaFollette, McHenry, Martin, Money, Nelson, Newlands, Overman, Owen, Paynter, Smith of South Carolina, Stone, Taliaferro, Taylor and Tillman.

On this vote Senator Culbertson did not lose a single Democrat and held the seven progressives besides winning over two stand-patters, Dupont and Johnson. There were, however, a number of absentees, among them Senators Bailey, Clark and Shirley on the Democratic side and Clapp and Dooliver of the Progressives. A number of high protection Republicans were also absent.

While a victory was won in the Senate for cotton bagging, the fate of that amendment still is uncertain, as it will have to be fought out in conference.

FOURTH OF JULY WARNING.

Oklahoma Officer Issues Circular Regarding Manner of Treating Victims of Explosives.

Shawnee, Ok., June 28.—The people of Oklahoma are warned of the danger attending Fourth of July celebrations in the following address issued by State Health Commissioner Muhr:

To the People of Oklahoma: The approach of our National holiday is to many a source of considerable anxiety. Its celebration is too often followed by accidents that maim, especially those caused by explosives, and often followed by tetanus, or commonly called lockjaw. In view of these accidents we would warn the parents or others having charge of children of the great danger attending these accidents, especially those due to toy pistols and like explosives. However, should any accident occur, we would recommend, first, freely incise the wound; second, carefully and thoroughly remove from the wound any particles of foreign matter; third, cauterize the wound thoroughly with 25 per cent carbolic acid; fourth, apply loosely a wet pack of boracic acid; fifth, give free doses of anti-tetanic serum, if the same may be had. A physician should always be called at once in these cases.

WEST WANTS STATEMENT OF REPORT PROBES.

Refers to Document Sent Executive by State Dispensary Examiner and Inspector Taylor.

Guthrie, Ok., June 28.—Attorney General West, whose name was mentioned in State Examiner and Inspector Taylor's report as to the condition of the state dispensary, in connection with a $3,402.92 item used in enforcing the prohibition law, has written a letter to Gov. Haskell, requesting that inquiry be made as to his part in the transactions, and names do act with Mr. Taylor, in making the probe. Gov. Haskell, also Justice Williams of the Supreme Court. He insists that itemized statements of all moneys he handled in connection with prohibition enforcement will be found in vouchers in the state auditor's office. In naming Governor Haskell and Justice Williams to act with Mr. Taylor, Attorney General West adds:

"I think it is so far understood that none of you have at any time been my nearest and dearest friends and none are hostile to Mr. Taylor, and none of you will seek to cover up anything for my benefit."

The report referred to, published Sunday morning, was one in which the State Examiner and Inspector called attention to what he considered the incompetency of the dispensary books, referring particularly to amounts of money used for enforcement, without apparent detail record in the dispensary of the expenditures.

Report also shows that the dispensary in connection with enforcement has been costing the state over $2,500 per month more than the profits.

Gov. Haskell received the report early last week, but returned it to the state examiner and inspector on Saturday, when informed that it had been made public.

Today the Governor, referring to newspaper articles, addressed a letter to State Examiner Taylor, requesting specific information and whether there were charges to be made, and if so, he wanted them made plainly. To this the examiner had not replied at the close of the day. He remarked in the presence of the newspaper reporters that if those interested would read the official report and not the newspapers there would be no explanation to ask for.

Attorney General West's connection with the prohibition enforcement and the $3,400 sum, is explained in another communication he addressed to State Examiner and Inspector Taylor. He says:

"Every one should know, and your office undoubtedly does, that the attorney general has no official or unofficial connection with the agency, and never has had. Previous to the appointment of Mr. Caldwell (state enforcement attorney) certain moneys were disbursed to detectives who were doing the work in the enforcement of prohibition, at my direction. If the persons who were to receive this money and who were employed in this secret work had had their names put upon the voucher at the time the money was disbursed to them, and thus their identity had become public property in the Auditor's office, their employment would have been useless. In fact, the great danger of the employment of detectives is, that as soon as they become known, at that moment they become useless. Therefore, my name was used as a device and a cloak of their identity, to be temporary only. I would make a request of the governor that a certain sum of money be furnished to detectives, and in each and every instance the governor O. K'd the voucher, and therefore the agency handled and managed the proposition and disbursed it, and not myself. The voucher was payable to me, and in each instance I paid the money to the detectives and received a written receipt of them for it. That receipt was afterward in each instance placed on file in the Auditor's office, and I believe is there now.

LIKES THE CONDITION.

Pure Food Inspector Works at McAlester.

McAlester, Okla., June 28.—J. M. Hays, State Pure Food Inspector, has been here inspecting the hotels, restaurants, bakeries, ice cream factories and all manner of places where food products are sold. He visited the two State prisons, the one in the old Federal jail and the one at the site of the new prison, the latter being but little more than a camp. He says that prior to coming here he has been all over the State and has visited all kinds of places, but that the condition of the kitchens and the bake shop at the prisons here, for cleanliness, far exceeds anything he has found in the State, not excepting the large hotels, in their kitchen work.

There is one bake shop for the two prisons and it is established at the old Federal jail and the transfer of the large quantity of bread from that point to the site of the new prison, where more than 500 men are at work, is attended with such precautions that all chance of contamination is avoided.

Mr. Hays was particularly pleased with the sanitary conditions generally surrounding the prisons and praised Warden R. M. Dick and Deputy Warden Gus Lubes for what they have accomplished, having had virtually nothing to start with when they brought the large number of prisoners here from Kansas.

TO HAVE MORE BANKS.

When Interest Rate Is High and Accommodations Poor Competition Will Be Invited.

Guthrie, Ok., June 28.—The State Banking Department has adopted a resolution, holding that when banks of a community are charging unreasonable interest and do not afford the public proper accommodations the state's policy will be to create competition in such community by authorizing additional banks.

The resolution grew out of an application to charter a state bank at Tahmina, LeFlore county, which the state banking commissioner refused on the ground that the population and business did not justify additional banks.

Franchise Election.

Council Passes Proclamation for Election July 20.

At the meeting of the city council last evening a proclamation was passed calling for a special election to be held July 20th to determine whether or not the Ada Oil & Gas Co. shall be granted a twenty year franchise in the city of Ada.

The company is anxious to get the franchise through as early as possible, as they report favorable progress with their leases and other operations, and in the event oil is immediately found they want to commence the work of piping the city at once.

Woodmen Circle Surprised.

Angelo Grove No. 42, Ada, Okla.

Monday night June 28, being their regular meeting night all the officers and goodly number of members present, were in the I. O. O. F. hall and while they were performing their solemn duties the Woodmen broke in upon them and to their surprise served them with delicious ice cream and waffles. After everybody had been served some interesting talks on the good of both orders were heard from the members. After a little order of business Grove adjourned declaring it a most enjoyable evening and hoping the Woodmen would surprise them again soon. Look out for the W. O. W. and Circle floats on parade July 5th.

Billy in the Tolls.

Nickel Billy, colored, who knocked Nancy Titus in the head with a beer bottle down in the flats Sunday and made his escape, was apprehended by Holdenville officers yesterday and placed in custody together with his victim who had joined him at that place. Chief Culver left for Holdenville this afternoon and will bring them back to Ada for trial.

MAY SUE EXPRESS COMPANY.

American Said to Expect Litigation Contesting Order Prohibiting Interstate Liquor Shipments.

Guthrie, Ok., June 28.—It is learned semi-officially today that in issuing its order to Oklahoma agents not to deliver any more interstate shipments of whiskey in this state, the American Express Company anticipates a suit against it in St. Louis, Kansas City, Fort Smith, or some neighboring city to Oklahoma, to compel it to deliver such shipments, thus bringing the matter squarely before the courts to determine what is the right of the Oklahoma officials in enforcing the state prohibition law so as to interfere with such deliveries. It is also learned today that the Wells-Fargo company will carry to the highest courts an appeal from the recent order of the state corporation commission fixing a schedule of express rates in Oklahoma.

The Devil has now more enemy in all this land than Mrs Zehner. She occupied the pulpit of M E church at the evening service, and her text was 'Go Forward'. To those who did not hear her it can never be that you missed her presence was made the occasion to do something for the effort that is now being made to place a fountain on the public square of this city and something of $40.00 were raised for that purpose. She also inspired a number of the good women to join in the work of the W C T U and altogether her presence was a benediction which we much needed and a help which we shall not soon forget.

In this connection I desire to call attention to the interesting local Dearest Medal Contests which our Union is having. A number of the young people are taking great interest in the work and the result is we are having some productions that are worth hearing. Please come out to hear these young people when you have a chance and thus encourage your home boys and girls. The good work which they are doing.

GEORGE LINDSTON TRIAL.
Continued by County Attorney for Purpose of Securing More Evidence.
The case of George Lindston charged with attempt to steal liquor from the booze ware room at the Katy depot came up in Justice Brown's court today at 1:30. The county was represented by J W Dean and the defendant by Senator Roddick. Several witnesses were examined but no definite evidence seemed to develop consequently the county attorney adjourned the case until tomorrow when it is stated that they will have secured more witnesses.

FROM COLD MUTTON FOR THE LUNCHEON

MANY EXCELLENT DISHES MAY BE PREPARED. SOME GOOD METHODS OF DECORATING THE TABLE.

Mistake That is Too Frequently Made in Cooking Mutton—Grilled or Dressed It May Suit Tastes of Many.

Pretty Arrangements Add So Much to the Enjoyment of the Meal—"Rainbow" Scheme is One of the Best.

Very few people enjoy cold mutton unless it is served during hot weather with a daintily prepared salad, and even then a frequent repetition becomes monotonous, and the time comes when the bone is so much in evidence that re-cooking the remainder becomes necessary, in order to prevent it being wasted.

The most common method of re-heating cold mutton is in the form of a hash, but in very few cases is it successfully made, for most people make the mistake of putting the cold meat into hot gravy and allowing it to boil. The cold meat should be put into cold gravy, and should be kept under boiling point, until just before serving it is brought to the boil for one minute, so as to cook the flour with which it is thickened. There are many other ways of re-cooking cold mutton which would give variety, and prevent its palling on the appetite.

The value of the bones must not be overlooked. The meat should be cut off very closely from them, and they should be placed in cold water and then boiled for several hours to make a supply of stock, useful as a foundation for soup or in the manufacture of dainty dishes from the remains of the meat. Fat which seems in excess should be trimmed off and melted down to form drippings, but a large mass of cold fat such as is found at the edge of a shoulder of mutton should be chopped finely and used as suet in the making of boiling puddings.

The simplest and quickest method of re-cooking mutton is by grilling it, but for this purpose only the largest and most suitable pieces should be employed. The meat should be brushed over with salad oil, sprinkled with pepper and salt, and grilled for a few minutes on both sides over a clear fire, which should be sprinkled with a little salt to make it burn clearer. If the pieces are brushed with oil and dipped in curry powder before they are grilled, they can be served as devilled mutton, and in this form they make a delicious dish.

Curried mutton is also excellent, for although fresh meat makes the best curry, one made from cold meat is not to be despised if it is carefully made. Peel and core two medium sized apples and cut them small, and peel and slice two onions. Fry the apple and onion in an ounce of dripping, but do not let them burn. Mix a heaped teaspoonful of curry powder and a tablespoonful of flour into a smooth paste with half a pint of cold stock. Pour it slowly into the frying pan, and stir it until it boils and thickens. Pass the curry mixture through a wire sieve, add pepper and salt to taste, and when it is cool add about one and one-half pound of meat pieces of cold mutton. Allow the mutton to get heated very slowly, and when it is almost at the boiling point serve it in a border of rice which has been boiled so that the grains are distinct.

Scrambled Eggs and Clams.
Rinse and drain two dozen good-sized clams and chop them fine. Beat together three eggs, add to them three tablespoonfuls of clam juice. Heat one tablespoonful of butter in a frying pan, turn in the clams and shake and turn occasionally until nice and brown. Pour in the eggs, add seasoning to taste and stir until the mixture is a soft scramble, then pour over hot buttered toast.

Egg Surprises.
Required: Half a pound of sausage meat, three eggs, egg and bread-crumbs, deep frying fat, chopped parsley, and made mustard.
Boil the eggs hard and remove the shells. Divide the sausage meat into six portions, add chopped parsley to each and some made mustard, and roll each one out separately in flour. Then roll half an egg in each.

To Clean Silver Quickly.
Place two quarts of potato peelings and one quart of water in an iron frying pan or spider, cover and boil ten minutes; then drop in as many silver spoons, knives and forks as the water will cover; continue the boiling and in less than ten minutes they will look like new. Remove the silver, wash in usual manner, rubbing well with dry, soft towel.

Red Pepper Sandwich.
Take one-half pound American cheese and small can red peppers, "Pimientos Morrones." Put cheese peppers through meat grinder. Then add enough mayonnaise dressing so it will be thin enough to spread. Cut thin slices of bread, butter, and use filling as above.

Baked Onions.
Parboil six large onions, slice off the tops and remove the centers and chop fine with breadcrumbs and bits of cold meats. Add one egg, salt, pepper, and tomato juice. Fill onion shells and cover with breadcrumbs dotted with bits of butter and grated cheese, and bake.

For Washing Teeth Brushes.
Tooth brushes may be washed in a strong solution of salt and water.

lengths of ribbon across the top of it and fasten the ends on the edge of the centerpiece with little bows. In the green vase place eight bunches of violets. From each bouquet run violet baby ribbon, ending in a little bow at each plate. This will make a number of ribbons resembling a May pole. After the luncheon each guest may unfasten the little bow at her place and draw a bunch of violets. The ribbons passing over the top of the vase will hold it firmly in place.

Buttercups.—It must be remembered that this flower closes at night and is therefore not suited for evening decorations. In the center of the table arrange a circle of rock ferns and in the circle thus made place an inverted round pudding dish. Surround it with a large wreath of buttercups. Place the wreath so that half of each fern leaf will project beyond the buttercups. On the pudding dish, the sides of which are hidden by the buttercup wreath, place a fern dish full of growing ferns, and almost hidden among them a green glass vase filled with buttercups. The same idea may be carried out in daisies.

Panicles.—A pretty and original way to decorate the table with panicles is to place in the center of the table upon a glass salver a glass fruit bowl. Fill the fruit bowl and salver with white cornmeal well soaked in cold water, and in this insert the panicle stems. They should be placed as thickly as possible. Around the outer edge arrange a border of maidenhair fern. An oblong dish arranged in similar manner should be placed at each end of the table.

Rainbow Luncheon.—A pretty way to serve refreshments to a number of people is to have a "rainbow" luncheon. Have as many tables as there are colors in the rainbow. The centerpiece table may be white. For the decorations use as many of the spring flowers as are obtainable. Colored candles will help to carry out the idea. The menu should be arranged to correspond in color.

Jonquills and Narcissuses.—A beautiful centerpiece for a luncheon is a large floral ball. The frame may be made of a piece of poultry netting bent into the rough outlines of a ball. Place a shallow bowl inside the netting before it is fastened up. When the framework is set on the table the bowl may be filled with water and the stalks of the jonquills and narcissuses may be stuck in until the netting is entirely hidden by the flowers.

Curried Pork.
Half a pound of cold cooked pork, chopped finely, one shallot, one heaped tablespoonful butter, one egg, one tablespoonful curry powder, one teaspoonful of flour, one teaspoonful salt, one teaspoonful of lemon, one cupful of milk, one tablespoonful of chopped coconut, one egg and one dessert spoonful chopped parsley.
Chop the shallot finely and fry it in the butter for a few minutes, then add all the other ingredients and cook for five minutes. Grease a pudding dish, pour in mixture and bake in a moderate oven till just brown. Serve with plain boiled rice.

Tongue and Egg Salad.
Cut cold tongue in thin slices, then cut again into pieces about one inch square. Arrange a layer of tongue on fresh lettuce leaves and on the tongue place a layer of hard-boiled eggs sliced thin, then another layer of tongue, and cover all with a good mayonnaise. Decorate the dish with slices of cold beets and parsley.

Rich Rice Loaf.
Half pound of ground rice, half pound of caster sugar, four eggs. Beat the eggs well together, then add sugar and rice. Beat them all together for 20 minutes. Bake in a moderate oven 40 minutes. Been tried with unfailing success by sender.

Restored Soiled Candles.
If the colored candles used for guest tables and other festive occasions become soiled before they are consumed, they can be nicely washed with a soft brush, white soap and warm water.

Potato Coconut Candy.
Take two baked potatoes, mash fine while hot, and stir in one pound confectioners' sugar. To this add enough grated coconut to stiffen and flavor if desired. Drop with spoon on plate to harden.

To Clean Furniture.
Take tepid water and castile soap, wash furniture and rinse well; then take a piece of old silk and rub until it shines. You can make it look like new.

Easy Fumigation.
Dried lemon peel sprinkled over coals will destroy any disagreeable odor about the house.

Apples cored for baking are delicious filled with orange marmalade and a little butter and sugar.
To freshen blue serge, sponge it with blue water. Afterward hang the garment in the air to dry.
When beating eggs observe that there is no grease on the whisk, as it will prevent the eggs from frothing.
Try a little lemon and salt mixed the next time a price mark sticks to the bottom of china dishes or bric-a-brac.
Chestnuts have considerable food value. The boiled and mashed pulp may be used as one would use meat or vegetables, even croquettes being made of it.
When making a flour paste to apply to wall paper always add some dissolved alum. The alum not only makes the starch hold better, but it will kill any insects in the walls.
To skim grease from soup in a hurry, use square sheets of clean tissue paper on the surface of the soup. Lay them on one at a time, lift off lightly and every bit of fat comes off.

Dutch Apple Pudding.
One pint flour, one teaspoon cream of tartar, one-half teaspoon soda, one-half teaspoon salt, one egg, one cup milk, two tablespoonfuls butter, four large apples. Mix salt, soda and cream of tartar with flour and sift three times. Rub butter in flour, beat egg light, add milk, pour on flour and mix quickly and thoroughly. Spread the dough about half inch deep in a buttered pan. Have the apples pared and cut into eighths. Stick into the dough in rows, sprinkle with two tablespoonfuls sugar. Bake in a hot oven 25 minutes and eat with sugar and cream or plain sauce and see if you don't say it is fine.

Sardine Crusts.
Have some oblong slices of bread a quarter of an inch thick, and a little wider and a little longer than a sardine. Meanwhile free the sardines from the oil and skins and lay them with a broad knife on a buttered, flat dish. Dust them with paprika, salt, chopped capers and minced parsley, and set into the oven. Then drop the slices of bread into frying fat to brown and crisp. Have the bread fried at just the time the sardines are thoroughly heated, and lay the sardines on the bread to serve. Have very hot when serving. Just a coating of tomato puree, having it hot, on the toast will for many improve the flavor of these crusts.

Brown Sugar Cookies.
One cup brown sugar, one cup butter (or part beef drippings), creamed together, one egg, one tablespoon milk, two cups pastry flour, one scant teaspoon baking powder. Keep on ice over night and in the morning they can be rolled as thin as a wafer. Cut with a doughnut or cookie cutter and watch carefully while baking, as they scorch easily.

Luster Pudding.
Half pound of flour, quarter of a pound of lard or butter, quarter of a pound of sugar, one teaspoonful of baking powder, one egg, and a little milk. Mix together flour, sugar and baking powder; rub in lard or butter, beat egg, and mix all with a little milk. Line basin with jam. Steam two or three hours.

To Blanch Almonds.
Drop the nut meats into boiling water, then skim out and drop into cold water. The skins can then be rubbed off easily.

Creamy Sauce.
Cream one-quarter cup of butter, add three-quarters cup of powdered sugar slowly then two tablespoonfuls of milk and three-quarters teaspoon of lemon flavoring. Set over hot water long enough to soften, but not melt the butter, take up, beat hard and serve.

Cold-Water Cookies.
Two cups sugar, one cup butter, one cup cold water, one-half teaspoon soda, one teaspoon cream tartar, flour to roll.

WHERE THE FAMILY IS SMALL

Excellent Method of Preparing Hot Bread to Be Used in Small Quantities.

The recipes for hot bread in the popular cook books are for large quantities, and an attempt to divide them usually results in failure, as it throws the ingredients out of their proper proportion. Doubtless there are readers of this page whose families consist of two or so, who will appreciate the following thoroughly tested recipes for small quantities:

Corn Muffins.—Mix one cup of corn meal, one tablespoon flour, half teaspoonful salt and scant half teaspoonful soda together; add yolk of one egg and three-fourths cup of sour milk and beat hard; add beaten white of egg and cook in well greased gem pans. This makes six muffins.

Biscuits.—One cup flour, one teaspoon baking powder, half teaspoonful salt, dessertspoonful lard and butter mixed. Mix with sweet milk to make soft dough. This makes eight biscuits.

Wheat Muffins.—One egg, three-fourths cup of milk, one tablespoonful sugar, half teaspoon salt, one teaspoonful baking powder sifted with enough flour to make stiff batter. This makes six muffins.

One cup flour, half teaspoonful salt, one heaping tablespoonful lard, mixed with a fork, and enough ice water added to hold paste together makes crust for one pie.

Apples cored for baking are delicious filled with orange marmalade and a little butter and sugar.
To freshen blue serge, sponge it with blue water. Afterward hang the garment in the air to dry.
When beating eggs observe that there is no grease on the whisk, as it will prevent the eggs from frothing.
Try a little lemon and salt mixed the next time a price mark sticks to the bottom of china dishes or bric-a-brac.
Chestnuts have considerable food value. The boiled and mashed pulp may be used as one would use meat or vegetables, even croquettes being made of it.
When making a flour paste to apply to wall paper always add some dissolved alum. The alum not only makes the starch hold better, but it will kill any insects in the walls.
To skim grease from soup in a hurry, use square sheets of clean tissue paper on the surface of the soup. Lay them on one at a time, lift off lightly and every bit of fat comes off.

DESERVED RAISE IN SALARY.
Theatrical Advance Agent Had Nost Scheme That Brought Him Popularity.
The value of the ability to know faces and the names that go with them is a recognizable asset among salesmen and all people who have dealings with a large number of persons. An advance agent of a theatrical concern, finding that he was not gifted that way, hit upon a new scheme for helping matters along. Immediately after leaving a town he card-indexed every man with whom he came in contact—reporters, hotel men, managers and merchants. He wrote a short description of their facial appearance, together with some incident which occurred while he was with them. The next year, while on the train, he would study the cards relating to the people of the next town he was to visit. The result was that whenever he met a man he saw the year before he would say something like this:
"Why, hello, Jackson! The last time I saw you we were still laughing over that fellow who slipped on the ice with a pail of milk in his hands. I have thought of it a thousand times since."
A raise in salary greeted the advance agent the next year, for he had every town his way long before the show reached it.
